1. Group Travel Card Program Overview

Purpose

The Group Travel Card is a credit card which can be used by University employees when traveling with a group of students for a University function. The Group Travel Card program provides University of Nebraska employees with a credit card to make purchases from vendors/suppliers for approved University group travel purposes. This procurement option improves efficiency by eliminating the need to process vendor invoices and to issue checks for payment. The Group Travel Card program is administered by the Division of Business & Finance.

Obtaining a Group Travel Card

To obtain a Group Travel Card, an employee must complete a Group Travel Card application, obtain approval by his/her department chair, head, or administrator, successfully complete a training program, and receive approval from the Division of Business & Finance.

Each Group Travel Card is issued to a named individual with the University shown on the card as the corporate buyer of products.

How the Group Travel Card Works

When a purchase authorization is requested by a vendor/supplier at the point-of-sale, the card provider's system validates the transaction against pre-set limits. These limits will be established by the Division of Business & Finance through discussions with appropriate departmental administrators based upon travel requirements. All transactions are approved or declined (instantaneously) based on the number of transactions and/or dollar volume of purchases. The cardholder cannot delegate use of the card, and personal use of the card is prohibited. The sales tax exempt status of the University is also embossed on the card.

Group Travel Card Expenditure Review and Approval

Each Group Travel Card has an approving official, selected by the issuing department, and reconciler. The reconciler for a department is either selected by the Division of Business & Finance or is approved by the Division of Business & Finance in response to the department's recommendation. The approving official reviews cardholder transactions (approving those judged appropriate). The reconciler reviews and posts the cardholder's transactions to the general ledger.

All transactions will be subject to audit by the Division of Business & Finance and others.

2.7 Transaction Disputes

A cardholder may dispute a charge appearing on his/her Group Travel Card statement. The first step is to contact the vendor. The next step is to contact the bank if the dispute cannot be resolved with the vendor. Disputed charges must be resolved within 60 days of the transaction date. If there is no resolution from the bank, the cardholder should contact the Division of Business & Finance for assistance.

2.8 Procedures for Violations of the Group Travel Card Policy

Two violations of the Group Travel Card Policy will normally result in the immediate termination of the cardholder's account for a minimum of one year. Violation notification e-mail(s) will be sent to the cardholder, reconciler, and supervisor, approving official and the Department Chair and/or Dean/Director. Issuance of a new card after the one year period will require a new application and successful completion of Group Travel Card training.

Fraudulent use of the Group Travel Card will result in loss of Group Travel Card privileges and possible corrective action in accordance with University policies.

2.9 Sales Tax

As a rule, the University is exempt from paying Nebraska sales tax. The University of Nebraska sales tax exemption number is printed embossed on the front of the Group Travel Card.
